Personal Assessment and Reflection

Purpose:

This tool is designed to help those individuals begin to assess and understand their own social and emotional competence.

How to use this tool:

This tool is for self-reflection. It is intended for personal use only.

- Read each statement, try to think of specific situations where the statement applies, then rate yourself on the statement by marking in the appropriate box (rarely, sometimes, almost always) to the right.
- If a statement does not apply to you, draw a line through the rating box.
- Use the Thoughts or Comments box as a place to write reactions or questions.
- When you finish, you will use the results to search for patterns of strength that you will use to help you guide the change process. You may also find some areas that you would like to improve. Don't judge yourself "good" or "not so good" by the responses that you mark as you go along; just answer as honestly as you can.

Reflection:

When you have finished, take a look at the statements where you rated yourself the strongest and the weakest. Don't let yourself get overwhelmed. There are a lot of behaviors listed here – you are using this list to become more aware so that you can begin the lifelong journey to nurture these behaviors in yourself and others.

- Are there any patterns?
- Do your strengths and weaknesses cluster in any one area?
- Look at the statements where you marked "almost always." These are your strengths.
  - o What clusters do they fall in?
  - Which of these strengths do you believe will help you guide the change process to improved social, emotional, and academic learning?
  - o Which are you most proud of?
- Look at the statements where you marked "rarely."
  - Select one or two you believe you will need to help you guide the change process to improve social, emotional, and academic learning.
  - o Develop a strategy that you will use to remind yourself to practice this new behavior.

You may want to make yourself a note for your bulletin board (electronic or paper) congratulating yourself for your strengths and reminding you to practice the behavior you have selected. Think of strategies that you can use to model these skills and embed them throughout the school day.
